Even the caves of yesteryear often run into cave paintings that tend to be round wheels or hotter lights. Fast forward a few thousand years, and here we are, with our Android devices threatened every turn by ads, while some apps have paid versions to remove ads, but some apps don't have that possibility. So a new way to block ads is happening. There are different ways to achieve a free ad experience on Android, all of which are not difficult to hire. Now you should know that XDA is funded by ads, our 10 servers (we have 10), our workers, our belly dancers, and our selection of premium spirits will not be possible if we do not have ads. So don't block ads, but if you need this guide, this will help you. The ad blocker AppOne's longest run and still very effective is the use of apps whose sole purpose is to block ads. The following APKs will do the trick, just make sure you have a device foundation before AdGuardAdGuard can be downloaded directly from the AdGuard website and has a wide selection of content control tools. Use AdGuard for ad blocking Privacy Protection LinkAdLockAdLock is a blocker solution with options for PC and Android. You'll have the option to block specific websites and filter all your traffic through secure HTTPS filtering, the LinkAdAwayAn app has been there for a very long time, but it still works very well: AdAway download the latest APK from here and move it to your device storage. Now in Settings -> Security, make sure that unknown sources are selected, then LinkYou will shoot your favorite file explorer and tap the APK file, which starts the installation process. Once installed, you can open the app. The first thing to choose is to download the file and use ad blocking. It goes through the process while you sip your hot coffee and when it's complete, you're ready to go. You also have the option to disable ad blocking if you choose. Just restart your phone and now you have no ads! Similar apps, Adblock PlusA with AdAway, works in the same way. Download from here and install it in the same way. When you open an app, you'll see the following screen: Just press OK Link, the next screen has various options. If you want to hide the icon, it provides a couple of ways to do it. Advanced settings have the option to start boot, refresh and refresh over WiFi, I disabled the WiFi option because it's done. Just reboot your device and you set it up! It's also a couple of Xposed modules that you can use to get an ad-free experience. This topic goes over Xposed in general and how to load it on your Thread LinkBut device if you are not familiar with Xposed may be easier to use one of the apk above. The MinMinGuard module should work for you to read the latest version of LinkParticularly compiled here, link thread, you just download the APK and install it with the regular APK installation, then open xposed and click on the module, you will see MinMinGuard, just press the checkbox on the right and then reboot your device. After rebooting, reopen your Xposed app, go to the module and click on MinMinGuard. Now just choose what you want to block ads. After that, you are ready to go! For mobile browsing, you have another solution! This browser has a general good reviews and will block a lot of online content while browsing. Play store links any way you use it now, you should be able to use your Android device ads for free and eliminate those intrusions! Now we have to break the news for our belly dancers.
